

Early Learning Music Development Programme

A Structured, Progressive Programme

Start Young for Best Benefits!

Music foundations and a love of music begin at a very early age.

Zoltan Kodaly, world renowned music educator, when asked about the right time to start music education, replied "Nine months before the birth of the child, "moreover "nine months before the birth of the mother."

Early childhood is the best time to establish musicality.

Music may be learned later but, like riding a bike or learning a language, these skills will never be fluid and natural in a way that is so important for musical performance.

Build Music Foundations

With a love of music

As well as skills in:

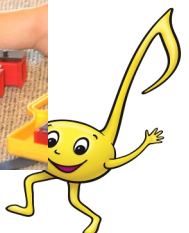

- Focussed listening
- Musical memory
- Singing in tune
- Moving in time
- Playing in time, individually and with others
- Beginning notation
- Develop a growing awareness of the musical elements: pitch, rhythm, beat, tempo, pressure and volume, and differences in timbre

All through activities which invite the child's active participation.
